DZAT-BLYTZ
BLYTZ MSRP: £14.99

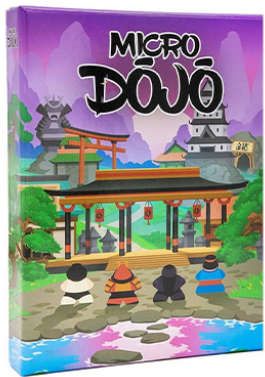

Blytz is a fast-paced world-domination card game for 2–5 players, playable in under 60 minutes. Assemble powerful armies, deploy lieutenants and generals, and battle for control of the globe. Use special-ops missions to sabotage rivals, spring traps, and seize territory. Dominate continents, build your empire, and outwit opponents with bold strategy and tactical precision. Will you conquer the world?

DZAT-ZKFOVER-FABLE-PASS
Passengers MSRP: £20.00

On the riverbanks of Limbo, you decide the fate of cloaked figures. Guide Souls towards eternal bliss or risk smuggling Demons for corrupted colleagues. Passengers are placed facedown, revealing unique Gifts that hint at trust and potential boat scores. Players vote on which boat departs for the Afterlands. This is a game of tactical communication, where knowing when to share information, when to stay silent, and when to bluff determines your team’s victory. Will you be honest, or a secret Demon smuggler?

LYNGK

LYNGK is the synthesis of the first 6 games of the GIPF project and the perfect epilog to the series. LYNGK is played with 48 playing pieces in 6 different colors. In the beginning, all colors are neutral and don't belong to anybody. During the game, players need to choose 2 colors each. The objective is to build stacks that consist of 5 pieces of different colors, with a piece in your color on top. If you use clever tactics, plan ahead and make the best of the possibility of doing multiple moves by using pieces of your own color, you'll have the most stacks of 5 in the end and win the game.

DVONN

In DVONN, players stack their playing pieces as towers. Ideally, these control as many playing pieces as possible and never lose contact to the red DVONN pieces. Pieces and towers that lose contact are removed from the gameboard... which can have a devastating effect on the balance of power on the board.

PÜNCT

A good connection is worth a lot. And the first player to link two opposite sides in PÜNCT wins the game. On your turn, you either bring a new piece into play or move a piece that is already on the board. The more pieces in play, the more possibilities you have to make a connection. But beware: Each new piece also reveals your tactics!

TZAAR

In TZAAR, each player has three types of playing pieces: Tzaars, Tzarras, and Totts. None of the pieces can exist without the others, and all three are required to win the game. This shows the dilemma behind the game: should you strengthen your own position or weaken your opponent instead?

Huch! - Logic Games

Colour Carpet MSRP: £14.99

4260071883049

For fans of the colorful retro classic! Use the seven shapes in different color combinations to puzzle 44 carpet challenges. To do this, the colorful pieces must be placed correctly on and over each other. The colorful logic game starts with simple patterns (including tips). In later levels, more reduced hints ensure that the brain is increasingly challenged. But practice makes perfect.

Marble

Marble In looks simple, but the arrangement of the marbles hides a lot of tricks. A marble is quickly inserted, displacing everything and pushing what seemed appropriate into the distance. Good planning is required here, because the marble currently inserted may not arrive at its destination until much later. Here the journey is half the battle to the destination.

Cube Master

Place the symbols so that no symbol appears more than once in the same row or column. Sounds simple, but can be quite tricky. Since not every symbol is included multiple times in every task, Cubemaster is a little different than Sudoku - but just as challenging and exciting.

Makoto MSRP: £14.99

4260071884640

In Makoto (Japanese for "honesty") you take turns laying down cards from your hand. Either rows or the same numbers - but always higher than the person whose turn it was before you. Anyone who can do this can also use the cards from the middle or put something down. If no one but you can play anymore, you win the points of the cards played. But be careful: not all cards give points! If you manage to get rid of your hand cards first, you will be rewarded again. Makoto is about skillfully improving your hand cards and deciding when to continue playing or when to pass better.

Aliens unboxed

3, 2, 1 - go! In Aliens unboxed, everyone starts at the same time and competes. Try to form given combinations of the 8 different, brightly colored aliens as quickly as possible. To do this, you fold and rotate your UFOs - the unknown folding objects - until you can fulfill one of the boarding cards on display. Depending on how difficult it is to assemble certain alien crews, you will be rewarded with 1 to 5 points as indicated on the boarding card. Whoever was able to score the most points at the end wins the check-in challenge.

2Can

The card game where “two can” win it all! In 2CAN, players must trade their cards wisely to end up with the lowest score, even if they don’t know the values of the cards they’re trading. Is it worth it to trade without knowing, or should they risk getting stuck with higher points by waiting? And just like the name of the game, “2 can” help—two matching cards in a column cancel each other out. It’s simple to learn and play, but has layers of strategy . . . and a little bit of luck! Simple strategic decisions on every turn, mystery cards add excitement. From the inventor of CLACK! and Fruit Punch.

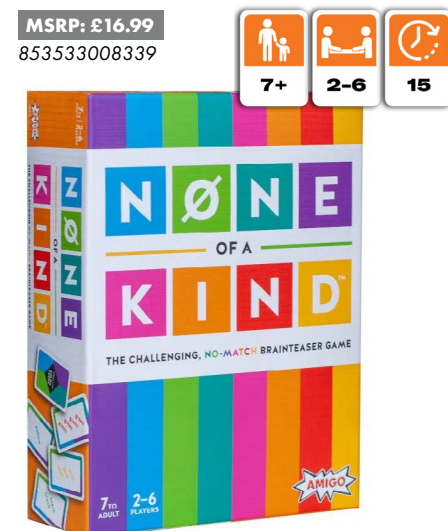

Dice Hunters of Therion

Dice Hunters of Therion From Richard Garfield! In the kingdom of Therion, villains are up to no good. Lead your team into battle against these foes... unless your opponents have a larger team! Then you can go after smaller treasurers or try to improve your team.

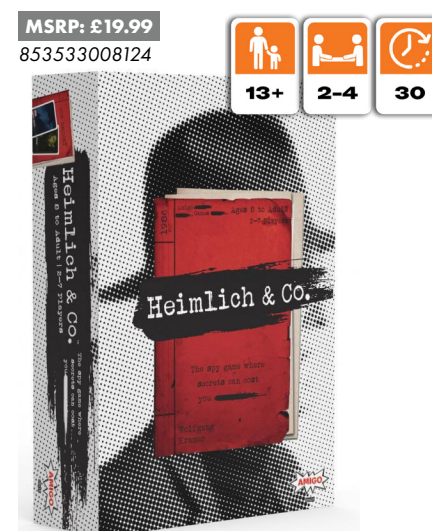

Dealt!

Don't Touch Those Cards! In DEALT!, you'll have to think in different ways than in other card games, because you can only play cards that touch each other... but you can't rearrange your hand. So, play cards that push your remaining cards together in just the right ways, and add cards in just the right spots. But the object is to shed all of your cards, so beware—your opponents may be conspiring to give you more. Dealt! is the English-language version of the highly-rated German game Krass Kariert.

None of a kind

The challenging, no-match brainteaser game. Wait—it says “blue,” but it's printed in red. What's going on? This multi-player brainteaser game is designed to befuddle, and strengthen your brain. Everyone plays at once as you race to match up cards that don't match—it sounds easy, but it's surprisingly challenging. None of a Kind improves your brain's processing speed!

Heimlich & Co

Heimlich & Co. The Ultimate Top-Secret Spy Game. Intrigue abounds in this Cold War classic, as secret agents try to conceal their identities while earning points for collecting classified information from a secret safe. The gameplay is simple: players roll the die and move any spy they choose. When a spy lands on the building with the safe, every agent earns points and the safe moves to another building. It's fast-moving, fun, and full of deception.

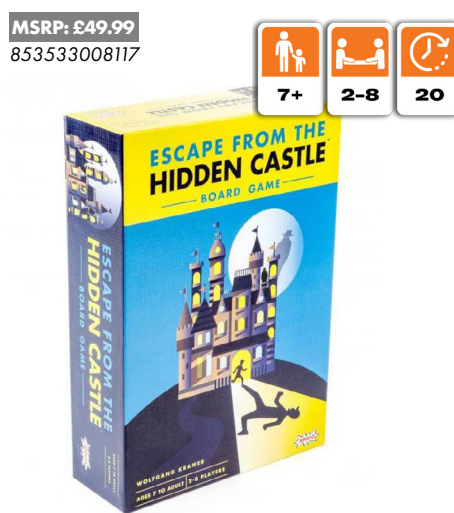

Monster Expedition

An Adventure in the World of Carnival of Monsters® Strike out from your base camp in search of epic monsters and use their powers to capture even more ferocious beasts in this dice-rolling adventure invented by Alexander Pfister set in the world of Carnival of Monsters.

Double Down

The Game Where Doubles Are Trouble. This simple, yet satisfying, card game makes a little math go a long way. Players take turns adding cards to the stack, increasing the total as they play. Every time they double down (make a total of 11, 22, 33, etc.) or go over 99 they lose a chip. Action cards double the fun, switching the direction of play or forcing other players to play an extra card. As the total rises so does the tension, until the last player holding a chip wins the game.

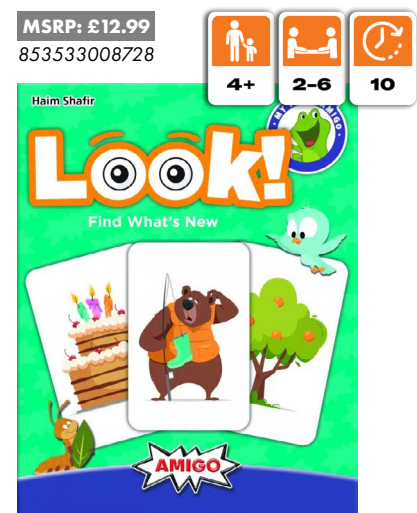

Escape from the Hidden Castle

You can run and you can hide...but only for a moment with strategy and a little luck, players try to scurry away from the phantom and escape the castle. On each turn, a roll of the die moves one player forward or unleashes the phantom. Players can hide in the safety of the castle's chambers, until another player boots them out. In the end, there's no escape...for all but one.

Where is Mausi?

Mausi is looking for her friends! Everyone helps Mausi remember where her friends are when the dice is rolled. Find all of her friends before sunset to win!

Look!

Something has changed—do you know what? Take turns flipping one card, changing the picture slightly. Then see who can find the change.

Unsolved: Hunt for the truth

Hunt For The Truth! Can you crack the case? Search the picture cards and uncover the evidence to solve the crime. With three cases to solve, Unsolved is sure to keep you guessing!

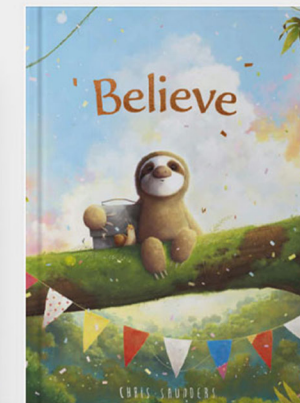

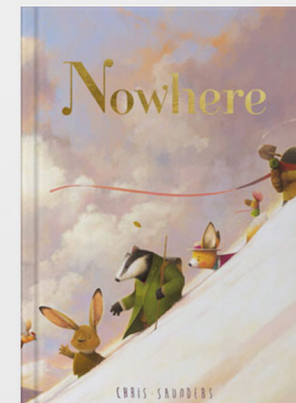

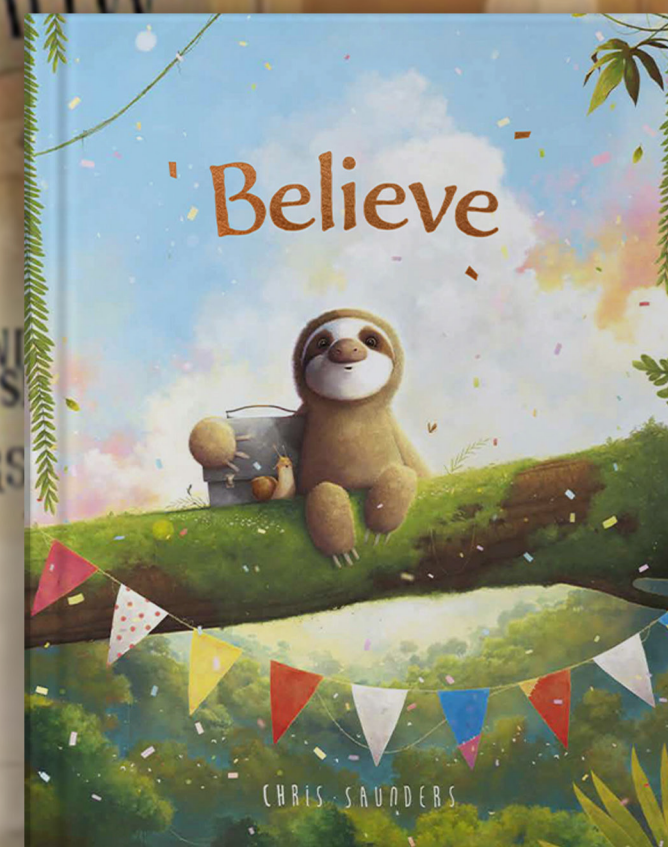

Froggies

Draw a number card and put it in order in front of you. Keep going until you get a match or find trash to clean up. The first to complete their row wins!
